

Topic: Ai Miyazato, Japanese female golf rising star, finished in season's best sixth place at the 2006 LPGA Takefuji Classic!

The 7th Takefuji Classic tournament in Las Vegas ended on a high note. We would like to express our sincere gratitude to all involved, including LPGA Commissioner Carolyn F. Bivens, the Las Vegas Country Club, the media and volunteers, for their warm support and wonderful efforts.

The 2006 LPGA Takefuji Classic, 7th leg of the official Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) tournament, was held over three days from Thursday, April 13, local time (April 14 in Japan), at the Las Vegas Country Club, in Nevada, the United States. It was the seventh Takefuji Classic, which was first held in 2000. The tournament has consistently produced competition of the highest intensity, attracted a vast number of golf fans.

At this year's event, players again impressed with their game. On the final day, Ai Miyazato, who started the day in 17th place, played well with cool shots, finishing with eight birdies and two bogeys for her best round score this season. She finished the tournament with an eleven under-par 205 total, in sixth place. Again, this was her best result of the season. We look forward to her further progress, and her comments after the tournament are anything to go by: "This tournament boosted my self-esteem. I don't want to forget what I feel now. I would like to carry my excitement into the next game." Other Japanese players also put up a good show. Namika Omata finished in a tie for 49th place with an overall score of two-under, while Riko Higashio finished in a tie for 54th place with an overall score of one-under. The final day's golf was broadcast by all six of the TV Tokyo network affiliates attracted more viewers than in previous years. Winner Lorena Ochoa (from Mexico), who stood alone atop the leader board from the first day, impressed with consistent golf throughout the tournament. She won the event with a 19-under 197 total, a tournament record, finishing with a three-stroke lead over Seon Hwa Lee (from Korea) in second place. It was the first victory for Ochoa this season and the fourth LPGA win in her career.

STOP! Using Disposable Wooden Chopsticks Campaign : Saving Forest Activity

Since Takefuji Corporation announced Environmental Conservation Efforts Policy on February 3rd, 2005, the Company has taken continual tangible actions for environmental protection. For Takefuji eco-pocket tissues, water-based ink is applied onto its packages and using bagasse (the pulp remaining in sugar cane) for tissues. Also the Forest Volunteer Club was established by employees who had participated in Takefuji Volunteer activities.

As one of our environmental protection activities, Takefuji Corporation has taken up a new campaign, STOP! Using Disposable Wooden Chopsticks that all employees now abstain from using disposable wooden chopsticks and they bring my Chopsticks at work.
